MEYER HAS COUNSEL.
Brooke & Brooke Engaged to Defend the Doctor.
Dr. W. J. O'Sullivan Will Aid This Law Firm.
The Alleged Poisoner Still Refuses to Discuss His Case.

The question as to who will act as counsel for Dr. Henry C. W. Meyer, alias Carl Schaeffer, who is locked up in the Tombs charged with having caused the death by poison of Gustave A. Baum, in March, 1892, was settled to-day.

DR. MEYER BEFORE JUDGE COWING.

The law firm of Brooke & Brooke will defend Meyer, with Dr. W. J. O'Sullivan, the medico-legal expert, as associate counsel. The decision was reached at noon when Lawyer William F. Howe announced that he would abandon the case for the reason that the $500 retainer that he demanded had not materialized.

Dr. Meyer was seen at the Tombs by an "Evening World" reporter this forenoon. The accused man has undergone a thorough transformation. He has had his hair cut and his beard shaved off, and were it not for the peculiar expression of his eyes, which it is impossible for him to rid himself of, no one would recognize him in the poor, dejected-looking object that was brought from Detroit on Monday.

Meyer came down into the lower corridor of the old prison in obedience to Warden Fallon's order. He took his place in the little iron cage where prisoners receive visitors. Even Warden Fallon failed to recognize the man at first, and he asked a keeper who the prisoner in the cage was.

"Can I go upstairs again?"

On being told that he could the doctor turned without a word, and marched up to his cell in the second tier.

The barbering process he has undergone has made of Meyer a rather good-looking man. His face is clean cut and intellectual. His countenance, however, which is popularly believed to give evidence of weakness of character.

Meyer was reported this morning that he had a sudden attack of stomach trouble. This report was not borne out by Meyer's appearance this noon. He
